Using the Online Safety Policy Template

An online safety policy provides educational settings with a framework to develop their online safety ethos and enables leaders and managers to detail strategic approaches and considerations, with regards to the safer use of technology.

The online safety policy should be recognised as a safeguarding policy, not a technical or computing policy and falls within the role and responsibilities the Designated Safeguarding Lead (DSL). There is no requirement for educational settings to have a separate online safety policy if online safety issues are appropriately addressed within other policies; this decision will be down to leaders and managers. If online safety is embedded within existing documents, settings should ensure that their community is aware of how and where to locate safety information, especially regarding responding to and reporting specific online safety concerns.

This policy should support a schools/settings acceptable use policy, social media policy and handling complaints made by parents on line using social media.

We encourage all educational settings to ensure that their online safety policy is individualised for their own specific context, to ensure that it is fit for purpose. It will not be appropriate for educational settings to adopt this template in its entirety; some statements will be more relevant to some settings than others.

This policy template requires leaders, managers and DSLs to adapt the content to include specific local information such as their own named points of contact, as well as their specific procedures and expectations. These decisions and details will vary from setting to setting, so this template should be used as a starting framework.

This policy will be reviewed at least annually. It will also be revised following any concerns and/or updates to national and local guidance or procedure

Remote Learning Online Safety Reminder Oct 2020

<https://learning.nspcc.org.uk/news/2020/march/undertaking-remote-teaching-safely>

Remote teaching

When teaching children remotely, staff will consider various safeguarding measures. Throughout the coronavirus pandemic (COVID-19), schools have had to make significant changes to the way they operate, this includes teaching remotely both online and offline.

Which platforms will be used?

We make sure the platforms are suitable for the children's age group, stage of development and ability. Eyam School sets up school accounts for any online platforms not teachers' personal accounts. We also double check the privacy settings.

> Visit Net Aware, created in partnership with O2, for information about privacy settings on the latest social networks, apps and games \(including video calling apps\)

Consent

We aim to ensure parents, carers and children understand the benefits and risks of online lessons and get written consent for children to be involved. We also talk to staff about how you plan to deliver remote lessons – currently we are trialling teaching online using a mix of livestreaming to a whole class or year group as well as using an on line chat function. Staff will take appropriate actions to minimise risks.

> Read our information to make sure you know how to livestream safely

Livestreaming

Livestreaming can be used by schools to broadcast an event taking place in school or to view external events. It's a valuable educational medium which can connect our school with the community and with events outside of the locality.

To create a safe environment for children and young people when watching or engaging in a livestream, there are several things you should consider.

Before starting any livestream, we remind children:

- Not to share private information
- Not to respond to contact requests from people they don't know
- Who they should tell if they see or hear anything upsetting or inappropriate.

At Eyam we do not share images during public Livestreaming events

> Find out more about photography and image sharing guidance

Hosting a livestream

Hosting a livestream means any situation where the school instigates, publishes and is responsible for streaming online content. This includes livestreaming lessons, assemblies, announcements, activities, and if external visitors livestream on the school site.

When hosting a livestream

- We do not use free platforms such as YouTube or Facebook Live as these do not allow you to restrict the audience

- We will consider inviting our audience to register to watch the stream and issue a log in and password, or look into using a custom platform if livestreaming is regularly used in school
- We are aware of the privacy settings and know how to report any offensive or abusive content
- The stream should take place in school time and must be supervised by appropriate adults at all times
- We are sensitive to the needs of individual students, including d/Deaf and disabled children, and children who may be sensitive to certain topics or issues that may arise during the livestream
- Appropriate staff will supervise and be on hand to handle any sudden changes or upsetting developments that may occur during the livestream.

Joining a livestream

When joining a livestream that is hosted by someone outside the school, we may participate through posting audio or written comments and liking or sharing the stream.

- We familiarise ourselves with the type of content to be used in the stream and check it is appropriate and relevant
- We check with the provider on how they will use the stream in future. For example, will it be kept for archive purposes and will it be broadcast as a recorded event?
- We make sure pupils know they don't have to contribute to requested donations on celebrity or vlogger streams
- We remind pupils that any comments posted will be seen by others and cannot be edited or deleted and this can become a part of their digital footprint.

Maintaining professional boundaries

Teaching online is different to teaching face-to-face but adults should always maintain professional relationships with children and young people. Staff of Eyam continue to refer to our code of conduct for all staff. If we are recording or live streaming lessons, we make sure teachers are in a neutral area where nothing personal or inappropriate can be seen or heard in the background.

Contacting children at home

Sometimes staff might need to contact children individually, for example to give feedback on homework. Staff will only contact children during normal school hours, or at times agreed by the school leadership team (DfE, 2020)¹. Any one-to-one sessions, for example pastoral care meetings, should be risk assessed and approved by the school's leadership team (DfE, 2020)². We ensure staff know what safeguarding measures to take if they are having a one-to-one conversation with a child and always inform another member of staff and record the time and focus of the intended discussion as well as its outcome. If possible we will invite another member of staff to be on the call and always email the parent beforehand so they can be on hand if needed by the child.

> Read our information about one-to-one contact

We use parents' or carers' email addresses/phone numbers to communicate with children, unless this poses a safeguarding risk. We use school accounts to communicate via email or online platforms, never teachers' personal accounts.

We ensure any phone calls are made from a blocked number so teacher's personal contact details are not visible.

If staff members are accessing families' contact details at home, we ensure they comply with the Data Protection Act 2018.

Child protection concerns

If children aren't seeing trusted adults at school every day, it's even more important that staff are able to identify any child protection concerns and take appropriate action.

For example, concerns may arise when:

- A staff member sees or hears something worrying during an online lesson
- A child discloses abuse during a phone call or via email.

All staff are aware of the safeguarding and child protection policy and procedures. We make sure they know how to recognise and respond to the signs of abuse.

Remember that anyone can contact the helpline for advice if they are worried about a child's wellbeing. Trained professionals will talk through your concerns with you and take action to protect the child if necessary.

Call on 0808 800 5000 or email help@nspcc.org.uk.

> Find more about recognising and responding to abuse

Online safety

Children and young people are likely to spend more time online while social distancing measures are in place. Staff talk to them regularly about the benefits and risks of the online world and give them space to ask questions and talk about anything that worries them.

> Find out more about online safety during coronavirus

Children who need extra support

Our school is aware of any children who need extra support while they are learning at home. This might be because:

- they have additional needs or special educational needs and disabilities (SEND)
- their families need extra support
- they have mental health issues
- they are at risk of abuse and neglect.

Staff consider how to keep in regular contact with these children, support their learning and monitor their wellbeing.
